The Husband & Wife Law Team News
 A Little about the law-A lot about everything else!

A Note From Alexis And Mark

The little things with 8 kids can become such a major event - such as getting in the car and driving somewhere. As our kids are getting older, we very rarely are going to a place with all of us leaving at the same time, from the same place, as a family. When it does happen, it requires two cars since we do not own a car that seats all 10 of us. Recently, however, we did have the opportunity to leave together to head to the other side of town to see Mark's family. The trip starts out as we are loading into the car and our little one - two year old Cade - starts screaming as I load him into the car I am driving that he wants to go with Daddy! I could see poor Cade was torn between going with Daddy and going with me because my car has a DVD player and the kids that go with me could watch a movie. We just recently bought a car that has a DVD player in it. For more than 16 years since Zev, our oldest, was born I never wanted the kids watching TV in the car. Now that I'm older and worn down from all these children, any attempt at peace is worth it.... I'll worry about the TV addiction later!

Of course, Tate didn't like her singing so she starts to sing words to the same tune she is singing, but with lyrics along the lines of "Ariella should stop singing." Oh, the joys of being a parent to multiple teenagers." Then Zev joins in singing in an even louder pitch rearranging the words to "I take a bullet straight to the brain."

(Editor's Note from Mark: Zev is a good driver in part because Alexis and I are pretty demanding when it comes to teaching our kids how to drive. They need to take a driver's education class and drive 2,000 miles in the 6 months after they get their permit before they can get their license. Then we have them take a second driving course at Bondurant a few months after they get their license. The fact that Zev has racked up another 1,000 miles in the last six months going and coming from drive-thru restaurants is concerning, however. And Ariella loves to sing. Always. I sometimes hear her in her room just sitting there singing. As far as Tate trying to get her to stop... well, at least he did it in a creative way. He sometimes prefers a more direct approach: threatening the younger sibling!)

I'm not sure I can portray the comedy of the car ride, but I'll give it a try. Zev was driving and I was in the front seat. Although Zev is a great driver, I still get scared driving with him! I think it's a parent thing. How did this little kid get big enough to drive? Tate and Ariella were in the back seat. Ariella, with her never-ending love of singing, was singing as loud as she could.

VICTORY of The Month

We really do appreciate all the kind words people have to say about us. We have worked hard to try to represent people and provide a level of client service we feel is unmatched. But this month's victory felt especially good. This client lives in another state. She turned to an injury lawyer back in the mid-West who asked around to try to find out who the best lawyer was to handle her claim in Arizona. Another prominent trial lawyer in their state had previously referred a case to us and had been extremely pleased with the results and how happy the client had been. As a result, this client was sent our way. That, in and of itself, was a testament to the incredible staff and team members we have working here at the Husband and Wife Law Team. (Continues on page 3)
